

3.

- Switch statements provide the user with a variety of options to choose from and a default statement in case response doesn't match.
- If else statements used to give the user a condition if it is not executed the else option falls in place.
- Loop statements iterate a block of code until it terminates.